Part of Prohibition Law Held Invalid

Supreme Court Reverses Lower Tribunal In Lipke's Action To Test Tax and Penalty Provision.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 5.—The supreme court of the United States today decided invalid the double tax and penalty provision of the prohibition law for illegal manufacture and sale of liquor. The test case was brought by Ernest Lipke, of Philadelphia, against Internal Revenue Collector Lederer.

Lipke filed a complaint in the lower federal court asking an injunction restraining Collector Lederer from proceeding to collect the taxes and penalties imposed under the national prohibition law. The injunction was denied and his bill was dismissed. The supreme court's decision today held the injunction should have been granted.

AUTO ACCIDENT AT ROSENDALE

An automobile accident occurred at 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning on Main street, Rosendale, when a Ford car, license number No. 536540, driven by Andrew Short of 145 Hunter street, this city, crashed into a store window of Patrick Fleming's grocery store doing considerable damage. The car was badly wrecked, upsetting on a village hydrant. It was towed into Fleming's barn by the wrecking car of the Columbia Garage of this city.

In the car at the time of the accident were George Schatzel and Nicholas Rodenberg, friends of young Short, who luckily escaped serious injury.

Mr. Bennett an elderly resident of James street, Rosendale, was knocked down shaking him up and breaking his new straw hat. He was removed to his home by Supervisor Auchmoedy in his auto. A stray dog was killed.

No arrests were made and all three young men returned to Kingston in the Columbia wrecking car.

MOTORCYCLE AND AUTO CAME TOGETHER; 1 HURT

Glascow Sustained Scalp Wound Sunday.

Joseph Scarselli of Glascow sustained a scalp wound Sunday afternoon when the motorcycle he was riding and a Ford car owned by Sherman Vedder of 154 Center street, Ellenville, came together at the corner of Washington and Hurley avenues. Mr. Scarselli was removed to the Kingston City Hospital where his wound was treated, and he later left for his home.

Woman's New Era League

The Woman's New Era League of the Elmendorf Street Church will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The change in day is on account of Mrs. Cady's "Travel Talk" on Wednesday evening. This is the last meeting for the season. Mrs. N. K. Griffin will read a paper on "The Southern Mountaineers," and Mrs. Hewitt will have charge of the devotions. A social hour will follow.

Not This Miss Mahoney.

A dispatch to The Freeman last Friday stated that a Miss Agnes Mahoney of Kingston had been hurt in an auto accident at Schenectady. It was thought that the girl mentioned might have been the sister of Mrs. John Duin, wife of the Strand newsdealer, but Mr. Duin stated today that it was not his wife's sister who had been reported injured.

PROF. BINZEL ON PARENT TRAINING

Home Bureau Speaker Strong for Courses in Parenthood as Well as in Raising Prize Pigs and Other Animals.

Under the patronage of the Ulster County Home Bureau, Prof. Alma Binzel, at the High School Auditorium Saturday afternoon talked about "Parent Training," and she made her subject mighty interesting and informing.

Prof. Binzel was able to "answer back" to the argument that having had no children of her own she was not qualified to give instruction on the subject, by stating the fact that she had had under her management, from tiny childhood, some thousand children, and moreover she had had the time to study and devote to children that the parents all too frequently do not have.

Then, too, as the result of her experience, Prof. Binzel is a pioneer and an enthusiastic one in the field of the training for parenthood, in our colleges and universities, with some such training in even the higher of our grade schools and high schools.

The speaker proved her point to be very logically taken, considering the elaborate training now to be had at our Agricultural Colleges where, by laboratory tests and instruction, we are teaching our young people how to raise the most perfect, in fact prize specimens of pigs, cows, chickens, etc. She believes that we will not much longer be willing to raise our most valuable "crop," children, by haphazard, but will come to a realization of the need for scientific training for parenthood, including fatherhood as well as motherhood.

Prof. Binzel gave an interesting quotation from Herbert Spencer, wherein he says, in substance, that if all the people were wiped off this earth, and some inhabitants from Mars should happen upon the uninhabited earth and should visit some remaining college or university and discover copies of the courses of study, they would doubtless consider them extremely curious. They would find in the curricula that everything under the sun was taught but the rearing and training of children.

The speaker told of a college friend of hers, who having married and become a prospective mother, with no knowledge of motherhood, tried to help herself out at the college nearby. In the women's courses she could not find helpful information regarding the physical life of children, both pre-natal and after birth. But she decided that the educators must be of the opinion that the psychology of childhood did not begin until the child was six years old, judging from the books she could get on the subject.

It was encouraging to learn from Prof. Binzel that there are now some five colleges where there are courses in parenthood. In order to have actual laboratory experience and work, at Cornell, the Home Economics Department borrowed two children and took them to the Home Economics Home giving each girl in the department the opportunity to actually care for a child. A gasp was heard from the audience when Prof. Binzel announced that "Dickey," the first Cornell baby had 62 managers, and having heard such gasps before, she wondered how many were out of sympathy for Dickey and how many for the girls. But she made it clear that it was not a question of one manager, but of one policy of management; management regarding nutrition, sleep, play, association with other people, or social instinct. Dickey had a good start for he had been breast fed for the short time that he had been with his mother.

This year they have "Bobby," but not having been breast fed, he now has the body of a seven-months-old child, while he is nine months old. Nor has he any teeth yet, and Prof. Binzel stopped long enough in her narrative to make it plain that the growing and developing of teeth is entirely a matter of nutrition and not heredity, etc.

It was in connection with the telling about these two children that Prof. Binzel made her prophecy that it would not be long before we would have in connection with our colleges and universities, kindergarten and nursery schools where there would be children from one day to six years of age, in which, along with other things, right management of children living together would be taught.

In saying that some of the same principles would be taught in the seventh and eighth grades and high schools, the speaker told of a little girl, perhaps twelve or thirteen years old, who was a member of one of the girls' junior clubs in a home economics group. The leader of the group thought of various "projects" to put up to the children, such as the raising of tomatoes, chickens, etc., and then suddenly realized that practically all of the little girls had whom they helped to care for. So she made care of little sisters and brothers the "project" for her club. The one little girl had twins to look after named "Emma" and "But-Emma." She was taught how to bathe, feed and care for the twins, and told Miss Binzel with justifiable pride that "O, yes, the twins have a bath every day. On Mondays and Wednesdays and Fridays I give Emma a bath, and on Tuesdays and Thursdays and Sundays I give But-Emma a bath." Then she went on to tell how a young woman living near them had a little baby of her own and did not know how to do anything for it. So on the days

NOT PURITANICAL AS TO SUNDAY

His Church Leaves Proper Observance Largely to Individual, Points Out New Minister at First Dutch Church.

The Reverend Lucas Boeve, the new minister of the First Dutch Church, preached his inaugural sermon Sunday morning to a large congregation the Soul's Life Story. The underlying thought was the beauty of gratitude, the Scripture lesson upon which it was predicated being the incident related in the Gospel according to St. Luke of the healing of the nine lepers, only one of whom, and he a Samaritan, remaining to thank the Saviour.

Mr. Boeve evidently is one of those broad-minded Dutch dominions who seem to persuade and convince without censoriousness. He said that frequently he was asked was it wrong to play golf, baseball, tennis, cards, dance or spend Sunday automobiling. His reply was that it was not for him, a minister, to decide for the individual conscience. He suggested to each enquirer whether he believed that God had showered blessings upon him. The reply invariably was yes.

"Well, then," was the dominion's comment, "The Dutch Church never has adopted a canon forbidding definite practices. It leaves to the individual the determination of a proper observance of Sunday, merely asking that it be not forgotten that God had set aside that day as one of the seven upon which men should congregate in the temples dedicated to His service, and there publicly express the gratitude for what invariably they acknowledged to be his many and undeserved benefactions."

Repeat "Mr. Bols."

Tuesday evening the playlet "Mr. Bols," will be repeated, this time at the Fair Street Reformed Church under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society.

When she got through giving a twin a bath early she, a little girl not over thirteen, went to the home of a woman who had gone through the experience of bringing a child into the world, and showed her how to give her baby a bath.

Then Prof. Binzel showed how all normal human beings come into the world with a capacity for three kinds of behavior, inherited or unlearned behavior, learned behavior and rational or reasoning behavior. Considering Prof. Binzel's illustrations of the three kinds of behavior for a child to sneeze when a particle of dust would get into the nostrils causing the nervous disturbance resulting in the sneeze was unlearned behavior. Covering the sneeze with a handkerchief, because it was polite, and because it was a health precaution, was learned behavior. "Working" the family for what the child might want, by means of crying, in one case fits of vomiting; in another "tantrums," was one kind of rational or reasoning behavior.

Prof. Binzel warned against arresting a child's development at a low level, and illustrated as follows. She visited Cornell when Dickey was about eleven months old, physically a splendidly sound, healthy child. But he would not move about or go after his toys if he dropped them out of reach. She went to observe Dickey and found him seated on the floor on an old comfortable to insure against drafts. While playing he dropped a toy which rolled out of his reach and immediately his "manager" for the time being got it for him. Then Prof. Binzel said they would not do that again. Presently another toy was lost, and Dickey sat waiting to have it brought to him. It wasn't. He looked surprised, and when neither of the two grown-up persons showed any signs of waiting on him, Dickey began to pull in on his comfortable until he brought the toy within reach, when he grasped it. Nothing the matter with Dickey's mind or reasoning. Next they reduced the circumference of that comfortable so it was just big enough for Dickey to sit on, and in three days without any fuss or crying, Dickey learned to go after his playthings when they rolled out of reach.

Today entirely too much of the training of parents is accidental. Prof. Binzel told of a cultured, educated woman whose little girl had acquired the habit of sucking her thumb. She had tried, but unsuccessfully to break her of the habit. One day the mother was having some work done by her dentist and while waiting for some particular part of the process, noticed several plaster casts of deformed mouths. She asked the dentist what they were, and he told her they were casts of mouths of children who sucked their thumbs. The horrified mother immediately asked the dentist how to stop her child doing that very thing, and he showed her how to use adhesive tape to hold the hand in such shape that it would be an impossibility, while she proceeded to teach the child along mental as well as physical lines. As Prof. Binzel well said, if that mother had not happened to notice those casts or had not been inquisitive, undoubtedly a cast of her own child's mouth would have been added to the others.

While so strong for the new departments of parenthood in our colleges and universities, Prof. Binzel paid high tribute to the parents who had been a real success in bringing up their children, undoubtedly happening to do the very things that education and experience have proven to be the right things, and urged them to pass on their successful methods wherever possible, especially until such time as the newer way shall become general.

37 NEW HOUSES NOW BUILDING

At the present time there are thirty-seven new houses under construction in Kingston, and all will be completed by fall. This is the largest number of houses to be constructed during a season in several years in the city. With the new building that is under way the housing shortage problem will become less acute.

A "GYPSY KID" IN ANOTHER CUTTING AFFRAY

About 10:45 o'clock, Sunday night, a telephone message came to the court house, a similar message having been sent to police headquarters five minutes previous, that there had been a cutting match at East Kingston, in which brickyard negroes had figured. Sheriff Kolts, Under-sheriff Tunis Haulenbeck and Deputy Sheriff Seth Jocelyn, went at once in the sheriff's touring car and Sergeant Hanley went from police headquarters.

They learned that about 8 o'clock, or nearly three hours before they had been notified, a negro known as "Gypsy Kid" had received some deep knife cuts about the head and breast and had been taken to the Kingston City Hospital for surgical attention.

Who did the cutting or where the carvers, said to be two, had gone, could not be learned for a certainty although the sheriff and his men and Sergeant Hanley made a careful search of the roads and did much questioning. Later it was learned that long before the officials had been notified of the cutting two negroes suspected of being mixed up in the affair had been seen at a house on Chambers street where one had gone to get a coat from his wife.

An argument over women with jealousy on the part of the negroes is said to have caused a dispute with the resultant stabbing of the man.

A "Gypsy Kid" was slashed somewhat a few weeks ago at the same brickyard during an argument that arose during a crap game. At that time "Gypsy Kid" firmly refused to say who carved him up.

"BOB" CRANE STOPPED A RUNAWAY HORSE SUNDAY

A Broken Shaft Caused Steel To Start—Man Hurled Out.

Sunday afternoon on O'Neil street the shaft on a wagon to which a horse was hitched broke scaring the animal and causing it to run away. In the wagon were riding a woman and young child and a young man who was driving. The driver was hurled out of the wagon, but was not seriously hurt. The runaway continued out into Broadway where it was brought to a sudden stop by "Bob" Crane, a son of Mayor W. P. Crane, who happened to be in that vicinity at the time.

The names of those in the wagon were not ascertained, but they are said to reside on the Flatbush road.

Two Albany Firemen Killed.

James P. McGahan, lieutenant, and ladderman Harold P. Sayers of the Albany fire department were killed and Edward J. Purcell, driver, and Cornelius Patterson, ladderman, were badly injured Sunday afternoon when riding on No. 1, on which they were riding to a fire which turned out to be trivial, crashed into two automobiles. The fire was set by a demented boy.

D. & H. Shops Reopen.

The Delaware & Hudson railroad car shops at Oneonta opened this morning after being closed since May 19, when approximately 500 men returned to work. At the Carbondale and the Colonie shops 600 return to work at the former and 1,700 at the latter. The shops will be operated on a forty-eight hours a week schedule.

NINE CASES IN POLICE COURT

West Shore Detective William Tierney found Henry Gilsdorf, Sam Miller and Alex Doreaux, tourists, asleep in a freight car loaded with merchandise, and promptly placed them under arrest on Sunday. This morning on their promise to leave town they were discharged by Judge Schirick.

About 3:10 o'clock this morning Officer Peter J. Camp saw Albert Canine, a negro, acting in a suspicious manner, and called on him to stop and explain his actions. Albert, however, decided that he could outfoot the officer and ran into the school yard of School No. 7, and in order to stop him from appearing in the early morning haze Officer Camp pulled his gun, and threatened to shoot. Albert had no desire to run a race with a bullet and promptly halted. In police court Judge Schirick gave him a fifteen days' vacation in the county jail.

Six speeders were picked up Sunday by Officers Soper and Kuehn and five of them forfeited 10 cash bail, each by failure to appear in court this morning. The five were Joseph Eckhaus and Joseph Shulman, both of Paterson, D. G. Smyth of Greenwich, Conn., William Axinhorn of New York city, and Luther Russell of Woodstock.

Edward H. Trice of Brooklyn, arrested for speeding, gave bail for his appearance later.

POLICE BUSY TAKING KINGSTON'S DOG CENSUS.

Officers Carle and Shoemaker started today.

The work of taking the annual dog census of Kingston was started this morning by Officers Elmer Shoemaker and Charles Carle, of the city police force. This census is taken every year at this time, and requires several weeks to complete. The census last year showed about a thousand dogs owned in the city.

The Week at St. John's.

There will be held at the parish house tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, the monthly meeting of the Altar Guild. On Thursday morning there will be a celebration of the holy communion at 10 o'clock. There will be an important meeting of all the teachers of the church school on Friday evening of this week at 7:30 o'clock at the parish house.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 5.—The United States supreme court today decided that labor unions are liable as organizations to be sued in their association names in event of injury to property during strikes originated by the unions.

The decision, one of the most important affecting labor organizations which has been rendered in years, was handed down in the case of the Coronado Coal Company of Arkansas.

The opinion was read by Chief Justice Taft, who sustained the decision of the circuit court of appeals in Arkansas, which held that labor unions could be sued and that the complaint of the Coronado Coal Company for damages for injuries to property during a strike at the company's mines, brought the union within the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law and entitled the company to recover treble damages.

The judgment against the United Mine Workers was for $427,320.

The decision of the supreme court also anticipated by union labor leaders throughout the country, was regarded as the biggest blow which organized labor has received since the famous Danbury hatters' case in which the hatters' union was held responsible for strike damages.

Chief Justice Taft, in giving the decision of the court, cited numerous acts of congress showing recognition of labor unions.

"By reason of such recognition," the chief justice said, "we think labor unions are liable under the law for damages."

MRS. BRITT CRUISED.

Drivers Stopped, Then Started and Came Together.

Mrs. Arthur Britt of the Plank road, town of Ulster, was hurled from a light buggy Saturday night during the rain, and landed on the shale brick pavement on North Front street, at the head of Green street, and she was somewhat bruised. Her husband was driving the rig out of Green street into North Front street about 9:30 o'clock, when an auto truck of a candy dealer came out of Converse street. Scantling danger, both drivers stopped, and then started up again when the collision followed. The front wheels of the buggy were wrecked. Mrs. Britt hurled out and the radiator of the auto truck bent and the glass in one of the headlights of the truck broken.

REGENTS EXAMINATIONS AT WOODSTOCK SCHOOL

Woodstock, June 5.—The regents preliminary examinations will be held in the Woodstock school on June 19-20-21. The program is as follows:

Monday afternoon—Elementary English. Tuesday morning—Arithmetic. Tuesday afternoon—Spelling. Wednesday morning—Geography. Wednesday afternoon—United States History and Civics.

The examination will be held on eastern standard time. All pupils who enter the examination must present a statement from their teacher that they have completed the course of study as outlined in the New York State Elementary Syllabus. All pupils who cannot certify to this will not be allowed to enter the examination. The fee for non-resident pupils is fifty cents.

PEONY GARDENS BLOOM.

Darkest Variety May Be Seen At Pine Plains.

The Maplewilde Peony Gardens, comprising what is probably the finest peony collection in this part of the Hudson Valley, are now in bloom at Pine Plains. Over four hundred varieties are included in this collection. The very best American varieties are to be found there, as well as many of the rare French introductions. One of the most striking of the French varieties is "Monsieur Martin Cahuzac"—a purplish, sherry-maroon flower, which is the darkest peony now known to be in existence.

Incorporations Increase.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Albany, June 5.—Approximately a thousand more companies were incorporated in New York state and embarked in business during the first five months this year than in the same period a year ago. In Ulster county, five companies having a total capitalization of $87,500, incorporated last month.

W. S. Traffic Delayed.

IRISH DELEGATES WHO DO NOT FIGHT

They Represent Rotary at Los Angeles Convention and While All Ireland is Abandoning Belfast and Dublin Rotarians Meet as Friends.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 5.—During the years that Lloyd George and De Valera and Griffith and Carson and Craig and the other best minds of England and Ireland were debating the matter of the Irish Free State and the world was anxiously waiting and trembling for what might happen next, the Rotary Clubs of Belfast and Dublin were holding get-together meetings and golf tournaments.

This was recalled through the arrival in Los Angeles of William A. McConnell of Dublin, Ireland, official head of the Rotary Clubs of the entire British Isles, to attend the thirteenth annual convention of Rotary International which convened in this city today. And carrying the idea of Rotary spirit to its final analysis, Mr. McConnell of Dublin was accompanied by Harford Montgomery of Belfast, representing the Belfast Rotary Club.

Rotary, it is stated, is a "school for service," in which men of hundreds of cities, big and little, gather once a week, in the middle of the day, have a good time, become well acquainted, open their minds and hearts to learn, and then seek to apply their lessons so thoroughly that the world everywhere is learning to look upon Rotarians as men who do things and do them willingly and unselfishly.

By improving the individual member of the club, each man's business must be conducted on a higher plane; this means a finer influence upon all other men of the community engaged in the same line. The individual becomes a better man in his home life, while his attitude and activities in connection with his town, state and nation are ever keener and broader; that is, if he is a true Rotarian, and such, it is believed, all men connected with the organization are striving to be.

It seeks not to do big public things of itself, except in emergency instances, but rather to train its members to be helpful every day and in every way.

Kingston Rotary Club is represented at Los Angeles by Arthur H. Wicks and W. Davis Hawk.

IN SPORT FROCKS

French Tweeds Vie With British and American Fabrics.

Navy Blue Serge, Point Twill or Tulle Make Stronger Appeal Than Usual.

We can find good French precedent for the use of sport frocks and suits of tweed, and French tweeds of lovely texture have been imported to compete with tweeds of British or American production. The idea of a tweed costume all in the same material does not appeal forcibly to the mind of the French designer. He prefers the other striped or checked with the same mixture and some contrasting tone. He then makes a skirt of the plain fabric and a jacket or cape of the check, or he uses the check or stripe for the skirt and the plain material for the jacket. Often a simply cut cape takes the place of the coat and in place of the skirt is a chemise frock. So among the imported French tweeds there is almost always a plain fabric and one of stripes or checks. A rose and gray-checked tweed will be used with a rose mixture, gray. There are green and tan mixtures, gray and black and blue and tan.

spring days when she takes off the heavier garment of winter for a frock or suit of this description. Very much admired have been the coat frocks of navy blue serge many of which have shown a sprig of red. These show the French penchant for drawing the skirt quite snug at the back below the waistline and there is often a blousing of the material at the back so as to accentuate hip slenderness.

DESIGNING FOR STOUT WOMEN

Large Figures May Now Be as Smart in Appearance as Those of Slender Type.

Length of line is the thing sought by designers of apparel for the "stout" figure. Regardless of the fact that a usual glance at the feminine passer-by on any smart thoroughfare would lead one to conclude that the woman with a developed figure was decidedly a thing of the past, it has been claimed by firms specializing in clothes for stout women that actual statistics prove more than 50 per cent of the feminine population belong in the "stout" class. Time was when a woman of larger than normal size dared not select any sort of a plaid frock or even separate skirt when materials printed in large designs or patterns were as carefully avoided and the poor unfortunate was advised to always adhere to dark colors so that she might be as inconspicuous as possible.

Stile designing has reached such a state of perfection that these things are no longer necessary, and the large woman may now be just as smart in appearance as her sister with the slender figure.

A very slenderizing dress was made up in a navy and lighter blue cotton. The lighter colored fabric being used in the frock in the form of panels running practically its entire length and touches of embroidery in the same shade also helped to trim it. The skirt was of black jet nail heads or cabochons.

The same style idea might be carried out effectively in a printed foulard or crepe de chine, with a plain color material forming the panels.

The whole idea in designing clothes for the stout figure is to secure length of line and to avoid a nipped-in appearance at the waist, thus accentuating hips and bust.

Education vs. Marriage

By CLAUDE SMITH

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

When Miss Frances Turner established her hill school for the children of the poor whites of Mill county, unfavorable prophecies concerning it were vented freely.

"You'll never get the parents to send their children to your school, Frances," advised her friends. "Why, what they need is civilization, not book-learning. They get that in the mills, you know. Those mill towns are to them what a trip to New York would be to us."

Miss Turner listened indifferently. To educate the children of the poor mountaineers had always been her ambition. A chance legacy had enabled her to begin this work. And so the school was started.

Later a boys' wing was to be added. For the present only girls could be accommodated. These, ranging in age from seven to seventeen, proved apt pupils.

The six months' course ended, and when the new term began, Miss Frances, back from New York where she had been explaining her idea before the Chautauqua conference, discovered to her dismay that nearly every face was new. And it was evident that the parents considered six months ample time in which to acquire a very fair education as was witnessed by the dozen or more pathetic notes that were received.

"Dear Miss Frances," wrote Sadie Ellison, whom the elderly spinster had selected in her mind for principal of the great school structure which was to succeed the little school-house of the present. "I am sorry to say I shant be able to come back to school next term. Joel Upman has asked me to marry him and as in seventeen I thought it was best to take him besides the corn has to be got in lovingly SADIE."

Of the little sisterhood on whom she had built such high and dazzling hopes only Pauline Dittion had remained faithful to her trust. Pauline was sixteen, a quiet gentle girl not brilliant, but an enthusiast about the future. Naturally Miss Frances made her her confidant during that term.

"I'm going to have an educational institute," she said impressively as they sat together at dinner—Pauline occupying the post of honor on Miss Frances' right. "I'm going to extend its influence throughout the mountain districts. Pauline my dear don't bite that potato off your fork but cut it in your plate."

The second term started auspiciously.

"A woman's vocation," she explained, "is to teach mankind. The old days when marriage was a girl's destiny have passed never to return. At a mature age, when a girl meets the man of her choice, when she has satisfied herself as to his moral, material and physical and educational qualifications, she may possibly relinquish her duties in favor of matrimony. It is this principle that I wish to inculcate among our southern womanhood."

"Yes, Miss Frances," echoed the girls enthusiastically.

It was toward the end of the second term when Miss Frances received a strange, illiterate letter which caused her to ponder deeply, then she sent for Miss Dittion in dismay.

"Pauline," she said severely, "did you ever hear of a person named John Smith?"

"Yes, Miss Frances," answered the girl. "Capt. John Smith married Pocahontas, an Indian maiden who, under romantic circumstances had—"

"I mean John Smith of Oak Valley," interrupted Miss Frances, gazing angrily at a letter in her hand. "This person, whose education is apparently extremely defective, says that he is engaged to you and wants you to leave school and marry him. Engaged at sixteen! Preposterous!"

"Yes, Miss Frances," whispered Pauline. "Pauline."

Days passed. Miss Frances had forgotten the trifling incident. The school was flourishing. So much so, in fact that Miss Frances resolved to begin the construction of the boys' wing.

The carpenters with local shiftless names appeared about ten days after they were due—one of them rather, a low-browed sulky-looking fellow whose deliberation of movement continually affronted the energetic northern lady.

"You see, my dear," explained Miss Frances to Pauline, "that is the result of lack of education."

"Yes, Miss Frances," answered Pauline.

"Now I am going to train you in executive power," continued the teacher a day or two later. "I am going into town for a couple of days to try to interest Mr. Joyce, the cotton mill owner in our school. When I return I shall expect to see great progress. Keep that carpenter up to the mark."

"Yes, Miss Frances," said Pauline. Miss Frances returning two days later, found the work at a standstill. The school was in disorder, the girls sat about in groups, eagerly discussing something. Pauline was nowhere to be seen.

"What's the matter?" demanded Miss Frances. "Where is Pauline Dittion?"

There was a general glance at the blackboard. On it Miss Frances read: "Dear Miss Frances, John was the carpenter and he thinks I ought to get married now. I'm nearly 17 so I can't come back next year. Thank you for the aster and physic but John says domestic slens suits both of us just now. Respectfully Pauline Smith."

THE PICTURE HAT

Headgear of Increased Dimensions Holds Favor.

Large Shapes Are Irregular in Outline—Transparent Mushroom Brim Is Exceedingly Good.

The people most vitally interested in hats, that is, those who design, make and sell them, saw months ago the handwriting on the wall which indicated that hats would increase in their dimensions, observes a fashion authority in the New York Tribune.

The why and wherefore of fashions are always interesting. The tweed suit, far fetched as it may appear, had a great deal to do with bringing about the vogue for larger hats. It is a costume for which the public went in too strenuously. Women became so enthusiastic about the tweed suit that it became almost a uniform.

These suits required small, plain hats. Of course everybody became satiated with the tweed suit, and consequently with the type of hat that was worn with it. The feminine mind ever has demanded change.

The present reaction calls for more feminine dress and the picturesque hat. Hence we have the hat of medium size with drooping brim and those quite as large as the Gainsborough of old. We have, too, the poke bonnets affected by young girls.

Even the suit hat has taken on soft, or lines and coquettishly turned down its brim. We still see any number of off the face shapes, but among the exclusive models this type may be said to be passing. It is no longer a style feature.

Crowns of hats, which may be said to be of more severe types, are done

shaped, but they have little body and are of softer appearance than those used heretofore.

Large shapes are irregular in outline. In every way they give the appearance of softer lines. Many of them have fluttering flanges of transparent materials. The transparent mushroom brim is exceedingly good. Frequently a soft crown of straw may have such a brim of black lace. In many hats of this sort the crown is in a bright color such as periwinkle blue or in the modish pink tone so much seen in the recent French importations.

WOOLENS FOR SPRING WEAR

Paris Exhibits Warm Fabrics at Openings for the Next Two Seasons' Modes

Emphasis is being put on the use of woollen materials for spring according to a Paris correspondent. This would seem to be a contradiction, but Paris should exhibit such interest in warm woollens at the opening of a spring and summer season, but it is a fact. One of the most interesting features is the woollen dress with its own little woollen cape to match, not a bad idea for spring, but yet to be tested from a standpoint of general popularity.

Rodier materials were very well represented at all the openings and, as this house specializes in fine woollens, naturally a big selection has been made from his line.

The well known Kasha materials are shown in a variety of weights and patterns. These materials are woven with a mixture of goat's wool which gives them the soft, so-called camel's hair effect. Thus one finds in the new lines the Kasha serge, Kasha lorraine, Kasha Quatre, Kasha ruyko and Kasha Yella the latter a velours de laine which is looked forward to as a big winter item, it being slightly heavier than any of the others mentioned.

Checks Favored in Gingham.

In gingham the checks are again favored and this year there is a preference for the larger checks. Among these the black and white has first choice, brown is much favored, then comes the red which was so popular last year. Green which always looks so cool promises to be much worn and the yellow is forging ahead to the front in fashionable colors—all in combination with white. Of course the blue and white check, as well as the heliotrope and navy, are staple shades, and always in demand.

FAKE ANTIQUES.

It is known that "antiques" of many sorts are manufactured and palmed off on gullible collectors, but it was hardly expected that the ingenuity on which the industry depends could go as far as is indicated by Prof. S. Langdon, the Assyriologist, who writes from Oxford to the London Times that since the British came into control of Mesopotamia the manufacture in Bagdad of spurious relics of the ancient civilization once existing there has become a very flourishing industry, fraudulent "finds" being sold in great numbers to unsuspecting British officials and tourists. The first impression on reading this is that a serious calamity has befallen scholars, and that confusion and doubt will now attend the translation of Babylonian tablets containing remarkable account of the oldest known yet highly developed civilization.

But the damage is by no means so great. For it seems that, although the British officials are imposed on, the American experts are not, and the latter are acquiring the greater part of the real treasure—which is a part of Prof. Langdon's complaint. The American societies and universities sent out purchasing agents qualified to detect the faked articles among those really unearthed from the ruins. The British officials, on the other hand, do not know the difference between the forgeries and fakes and the real inscriptions and statues. Prof. Langdon fears that before the heedless British government takes any sort of action expert American collectors will have acquired everything worth having, but in any case the real finds will be preserved and the world's scholars will have access to them.

The inquiring or mildly interested layman is apt to be bewildered by the readiness of scientists or pseudo-scientists to reverse each other on the subject of the possibility of human life on the other planets of our solar system. We have become accustomed to talk about the "canals" of Mars, Nicola Tesla, for example, not only regarding them as prodigious constructions by human agency but going so far as to contend that the inhabitants of our earth by means of some sort of celestial wireless. Now comes Prof. Arrhenius, the Swedish astrophysicist, with the confident assertion that Mars is covered with hard frozen sand, that human or other life on that planet is inconceivable, and that the "canals" are nothing but enormous earthquake fissures. Mars is dead and dry. Venus, on the other hand, is "dripping wet" and in about a billion years it may be in condition to support human life, about that length of time having been required for our own earth to ripen into proper condition. It seems that the recent report of the Smithsonian Institution also takes the view that life on Mars is not possible.

Andre Tardieu, French high commissioner to the United States during the war, is following the lead of some other Europeans in holding this country responsible for most of the ills of Europe. "Americans," says he, "in trying to make laws for Europe make as big a mistake as we should if we tried to make laws for America." Just what he means by that language is not clear. Of course the United States has not attempted to make laws for Europe; all we have done is to point to certain fundamental truths and suggest that European nations be guided thereby. They are policies that we have not hesitated to apply to our country, and our own experience has proved their soundness. If France and other European nations would apply themselves to production, the reduction of unnecessary armaments, and the payment of their just debts, there would be no difficulty in getting substantial loans from private sources in the United States, without which they profess they cannot recover.

Although all arrangements have been made for carrying out the American part of the armaments reduction pact resulting from the Washington conference, nothing will be done until the other parties to the treaty have ratified it. The country may rest assured that American battleships will not be scrapped unless other nations exhibit a similar good faith.

"Chief Justice Taft's reasoning in the decision annulling the Federal Child Labor act would play havoc with some well-established Federal laws if the reasoning were rigidly applied all along the line."—Springfield Republican. It is quite true that there have been no few previous Federal invasions of the police powers and supposedly reserved rights of the States.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. In what part of the U. S. is the coral snake found?
2. Do seals have any natural enemies?
3. I note your recent statement that the bobolink migrates to Brazil. I have always heard that it migrated to southern states, changing to a dull plumage and being known there as rice bird.

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. What is black knot on plum trees?

It is a disease that forms swellings or galls on wild and cultivated plum trees. Trees should be inspected in fall and early winter and all such knots cut out. Bordeaux mixture will help protect healthy trees, but pruning is the only remedy for infected ones. Knots grow from one-half inch to foot long.

2. Do birds taste their foods?

We cannot answer definitely. Some birds take up, and immediately drop, insects that apparently are unpalatable as soon as placed in the bill. Others swallow whole kernels of dry grain, and show a preference for certain kinds, that would seem—thus swallowed—to give no sensation of taste. Apparently any gustatory enjoyment of such food must come from the stomach.

3. Why do cut flowers last better if picked in the early morning?

Any flower lasts better if picked before the sun is hot, but the vitality some blossoms show when picked early, is also a matter of their being newly opened, and as yet unvisited by pollen-bearing insects which do not work till the sun is warm. As soon as pollen has been introduced into the flower to fertilize it, the seed-forming process begins, and the strength of the flower is absorbed, so that it droops quickly when picked.

STORY TELLERS AT CROSSPATCH HOUSE.

Crosspatch had nearly a hundred people at its patriotic party on the eve of Decoration Day (May 29). Many of the guests came from New York City.

Mrs. Peters and Thomas Elder were captains of the opposing teams in the spelling bee. The whole crowd proved to be very good spellers and there were at least eight left on each side when Mrs. Cross exhausted her carefully prepared list of one syllable words. All sorts of hard words failed to town the trio composed of Mr. Hahneman, Dr. Gignoux and Mrs. Peters, so they called it a draw and presented the prize money to the Community House.

After the dancing and hot dog supper there was a session of the newly organized Story Tellers' Club, which has become necessary in order to give the many city visitors a chance to tell the very latest. The tables were turned in this instance, when Harry Ostrander told a classic entitled "How Pa Caught a Twelve Inch Trout in Our Cellar." Harry was able to prove that the trout was alive and swimming in an authentic brook, which runs from Silver Hollow stream under a corner of the Ostrander cellar. As Silver Hollow is about to be posted by the resident owners, it was thought that Ostrander's cellar should be included.

There is considerable competition among the story tellers to see who will capture the prize at the next session. The club meets informally in the dining room of Crosspatch Community House, after supper, and promises to rival dancing as an attraction.

5th, Ed Smith ..... 143	5th, Anna Darwak ..... 186

Honor in all events—Louis Epstein, George Bowman.
Average honor in all events—Raymond McDermott.

In the chinning event Raymond McDermott out-pulled Epstein twice, making his total 10. Ten in the chinning is 100 per cent. Pull-ups
1st, Raymond McDermott ..... 10
2nd, Louis Epstein ..... 8
3rd, Alexander Lory ..... 7
4th, Ed Smith ..... 7
5th, High honor—Raymond McDermott.

High honor—Louis Epstein.
Honor—Alexander Lory, Maurice Gerber, Stanley Krobocinski, Edward Jacobson, George Bowman, Edward Smith.

Epstein did not meet a great deal of competition in the standing broad jump, which he won easily, the next highest jump falling 5 1/2 inches short of his leap.

1st, Louis Epstein, 7 ft. 6 in.
2nd, Eugene Rider, 7 ft. 1 1/2 in.
3rd, Alexander Lory, 6 ft. 9 in.
4th, George Bowman, 6 ft. 9 in.
Honor—Louis Epstein, Eugene Rider, Alexander Lory and George Bowman.

The 50 yard dash was a tie between Bowman and Epstein, with both completing the sprint in 8 2/5 seconds. The second place was also under competition, for three lads finishing up simultaneously, two of the lads being brothers.

1st, George Bowman, Louis Epstein, 8 2/5 seconds.
2nd, Fred Bruhn, Louis Bruhn, Raymond McDermott, 8 4/5 seconds.

Honor being attained by Louis Epstein and George Bowman.

Miss Williams in attaining 205 points outpointed the boy second in the individual scoring for boys with a margin of 14. Miss Minnie Freedman evened up the score with him by making 191 units.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, June 5.—Mr. and Mrs. Story and Miss Story and friend were up to their summer home one day last week.

Mr. Van Dervent, son and nephew, spent the week-end at their summer home in Shokan Heights.

Secor House entertained the Goldberg family over the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley of Kingston and Mortimer Hyatt spent the holidays with George Barclay.

Mrs. Daisy Dingman spent a few days with her father Cyrus Cudney last week, while her mother made a visit in Kingston.

Mrs. Frank Phillips was called to Phoenix Monday by the death of her baby granddaughter, Mary Ellsworth, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Ellsworth of that place.

Many old friends of Mrs. Ellsworth who was Miss Hazel Phillips, sympathize with her in her loss.

Miss Laura Moe and Hollis Moe spent the week-end with Mrs. William Bogart of Shokan Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Van Steenburg and Miss Clara Van Steenburg and grandson Wesley Hogan of Kingston visited with Mrs. George Hogan Sunday.

Decorations Day passed very quietly here. Some old neighbors came back to visit with friends and went to the cemeteries nearby.

Mrs. Ruth Williams, Miss Hollis Moe, Miss Lena Constable and Sallie Winne went to the Ashokan Rural Cemetery and put flowers on the soldiers' graves. It seems too bad we do not have some special exercises for Decoration Day in a town of Ashokan's size and hope some day it may be so.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hogan and grandson Robert Delano of Kingston visited at her brother's, C. Moe, over the week-end. Mrs. Hogan remained until Decoration Day when Mr. Hogan and Robert Lipsburger came up by auto after her.

Wannetta Winne celebrated her eighth birthday Saturday, May 27, from 3 to 5 o'clock by having a party at her home for her little girl friends and schoolmates. Games were played and a jolly good time had by all present. At four-thirty all were invited in the dining room, which was prettily decorated in pink with a table laden with all kinds of goodies consisting of fruits, candy, cake cream and cake. The birthday looked very pretty. The little ones departed for their home wishing Miss Wannetta many happy birthdays and wishing that she would have a party again next year. Those present were Beatrice Dewitt, Marjorie Davis, Maud Constable, Ruth Davis, Mary Bentley, Ethel Buley and Vera Giles.

Spinneweber ORDER ARGUED

Justice Hasbrouck Resolves Decision in Controversy Between Port Ewen Bus Operator and Taxi Drivers.

Frederick J. Spinneweber of Port Ewen, who received permission last fall from the common council and from the public service commission to operate a bus line between Kingston and Port Ewen over the new Rondout Creek Bridge and who last Saturday made application before County Judge Fowler and was granted an injunction restraining five taxi drivers from operating a bus line between Port Ewen and Kingston and also restraining them from operating a bus line through the streets of Kingston at a fare of 15 cents a passenger or less. Saturday appeared before Supreme Court, Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck in special term and asked that the order granted by Judge Fowler last week be continued. Augustus Shufeldt appeared for Mr. Spinneweber and William D. Brinnier, Jr., and Henry E. McKenize appeared for the five taxi cab operators.

After listening to argument of attorneys Justice Hasbrouck took the papers and reserved decision. The injunction in effect is directed to Jeremiah Relyea, Grover Walker, Leroy Horton, Henry Nehr and Ross Nehr, their agents, servants, etc.

It is alleged that these taxi cab men have been operating their lines of taxicabs continuously between Port Ewen and Kingston in competition with Mr. Spinneweber who has taken the necessary legal procedure for the operation of a bus line. Affidavits were submitted to the effect that the taxi cab operators were carrying passengers for 10 cents the same fare which is charged by the bus. The law provides that anyone operating a bus must procure permission from the common council of a city which it enters and likewise a certificate of necessity from the public service commission. The law also prohibits taxi cab drivers from operating within a city at a fare of fifteen cents or less per passenger.

The defendants claim that in order to operate a taxi cab business between the town of Esopus and Kingston it is necessary to travel over the same route as the bus. Affidavits were submitted from a score of residents of the town of Esopus to show that the five men were not competing with the bus but were operating as taxicabs and responded to telephone calls and have not been operating over a given route in competition with the bus but were subject to call.

The Spinneweber bus operates over the Rondout Creek Bridge. Before the opening of this bridge several taxi cab owners operated from Port Ewen village to the Sleighsburk ferry. This route is still open and the ferry is still in operation but practically all traffic uses the bridge route.

The law also prohibits taxi cab drivers from operating within a city at a fare of fifteen cents or less per passenger.

The defendants claim that in order to operate a taxi cab business between the town of Esopus and Kingston it is necessary to travel over the same route as the bus. Affidavits were submitted from a score of residents of the town of Esopus to show that the five men were not competing with the bus but were operating as taxicabs and responded to telephone calls and have not been operating over a given route in competition with the bus but were subject to call.

The Spinneweber bus operates over the Rondout Creek Bridge. Before the opening of this bridge several taxi cab owners operated from Port Ewen village to the Sleighsburk ferry. This route is still open and the ferry is still in operation but practically all traffic uses the bridge route.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE SPRING PEEPER

"I'm larger than you," said little Miss Spring Peeper.

"True," said little Master Spring Peeper. "But you're not much more than an inch in size anyway, and everyone knows that an inch isn't a great deal."

"You have a nice brown throat," said Miss Spring Peeper, politely. "We both wear nice suits of yellowish brown. But the main thing about us is the way we love the springtime."

"Oh, how we love the springtime!" "We do indeed," said Master Spring Peeper. "We love it better than anything else."

"Deep, peep, peep, how we love to sing. We simply love to sing. We begin very early in the spring to have our season's concert. And when we're about through with our season the Common Tree Frogs begin their chorus."

"We look like little frogs. In fact we are little frogs, oh such little, little ones, and we're so hard to see or catch. We're quick and we're smart though we look so small and delicate and helpless."

"We don't mind it if there is a pond about or marshy ground or what kind of a home we have as we love to sing and enjoy ourselves."

"People don't know us by sight very well, if at all, and they don't know us by talking right with us, but they know our voices."

"Yes, in the springtime we're singing, a-singing all we can, I believe I'll sing a song about the springtime now."

So Master Spring Peeper began to sing and this was his song:

Peep, peep, peep, peep. Why should we sleep, sleep, sleep. When we can sing, sing, sing. And make our voices ring. With music chirpy and gay. On every rainy day. And also every night. When there isn't dazzling light. For we like the dark, we do. We like the soft moon too. But best of all we like the spring. Peep, peep, spring's the thing!

Master Spring Peeper grinned a funny little grin.

"Of course I like to sleep," he said, "but I don't like to spend so much time sleeping that I haven't plenty of time for singing."

"Of course not," agreed Miss Spring Peeper.

Just then came along a lot of little creatures with wings upon their backs and wads in their hands.

"They aren't crickets," said Master Spring Peeper. "And they aren't birds. Whatever in the world are they?"

"We're fairies," they answered.

Master Spring Peeper was about to hide.

"Do not be afraid of us," they said. "We will never, never hurt you. Nor do we want to catch you."

"But we just heard your song, and we thought it was a very beautiful song."

"We were wondering if you wouldn't come to the big Fairyland Concert which is to be given in the Scrumpious Swamp down a way from here."

"We'd like to have a chorus of Spring Peepers, and we would also love to have you sing that fine solo you were just singing."

Little Master Spring Peeper was very happy. He was just as happy as he could be.

"Oh, I would be honored, fairies. I would be honored indeed. And I will tell my friends and relatives, for I am sure they will all be honored, too."

"Good," said the fairies. "Then we'll have a great chorus of Spring Peepers. And though we will not send out invitations, their music will be heard for a long way off."

The Bait. Little Maurice, aged seven, was sampling the good fare on the side-board.

"Mother," he said, "what kind of cake is this? It's the best I've ever tasted."

"That is wedding cake, my dear," said his mother.

"Do people always have cake like this when they get married?" queried Maurice.

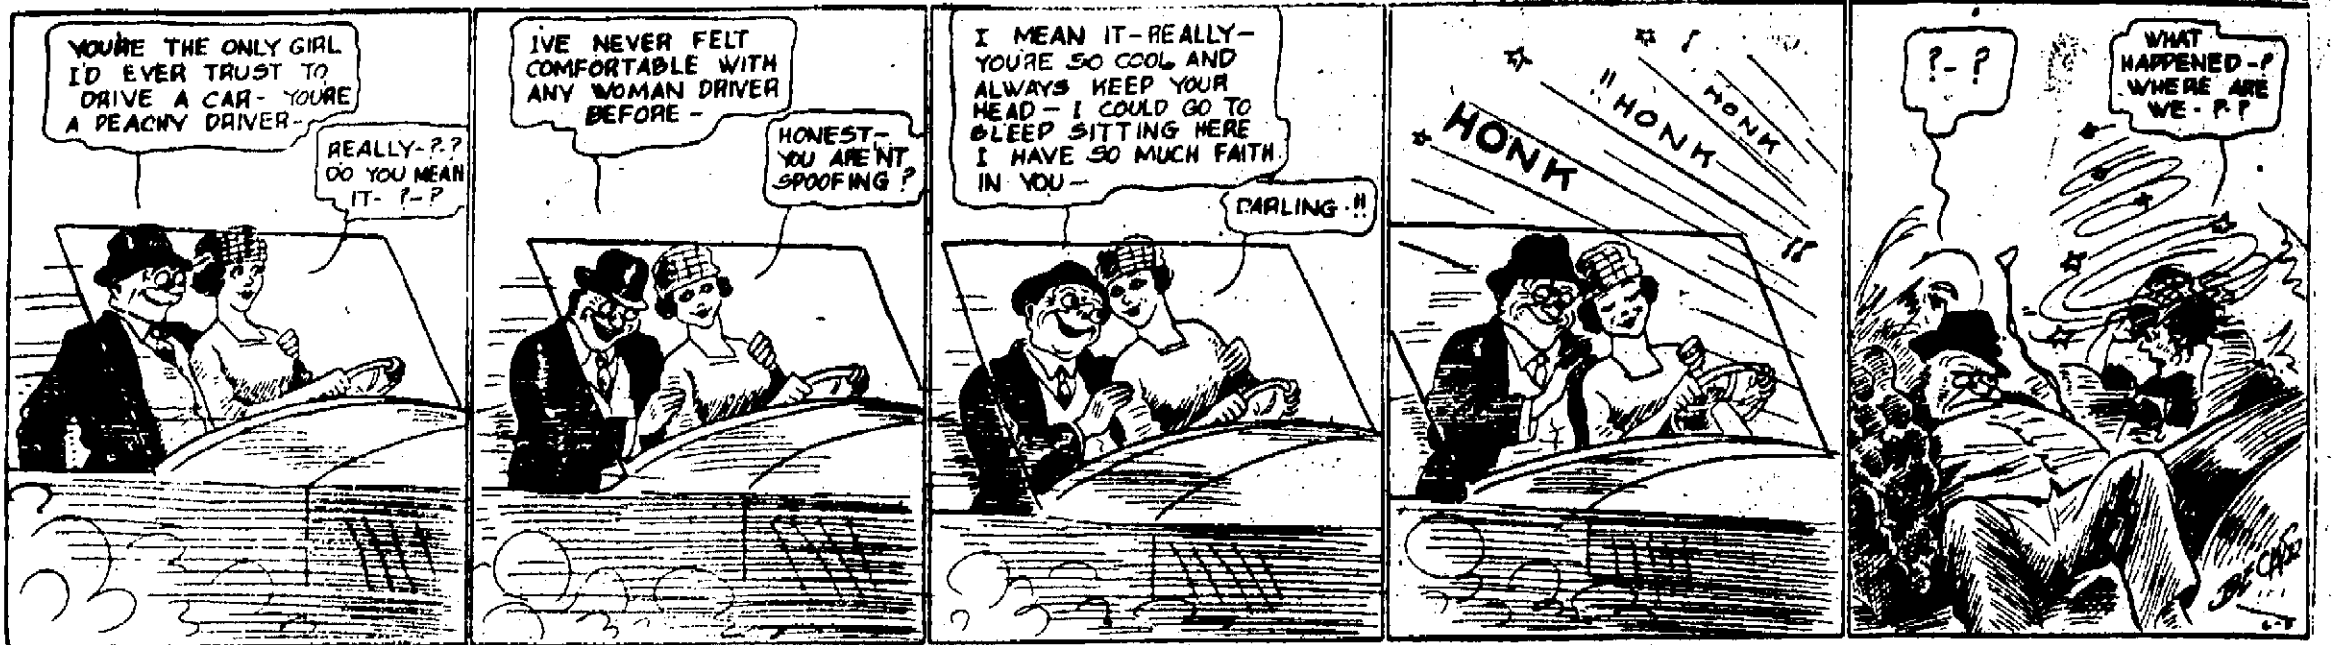

"Yes, they do generally," was the reply.

Maurice pondered a minute. "Ah," he said at last, "I see now why Henry VIII was married so many times."

Riddles. When is a lugger like a forest? When it is full of trunks. What flowers are most certain to be remembered? Forget-me-nots.

Buffalo Wool. Buffalo wool, collected from the prairie where the animals shed it each spring, makes carpets more durable than those of ordinary wool. Mounted buffalo heads sell for $1,000 and new buffalo robes for $100.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

Those who like codfish never tire of it served in a white sauce or in a butter sauce with baked potatoes. Soak the fish, drain and pick it into flakes, then add to a white sauce made by melting two tablespoonfuls of hot melted butter stirred thick and cooked in two tablespoonfuls of flour; when smooth and thick add one cupful of rich milk. Cook until smooth; serve with baked potatoes. A most delicious white sauce can be made using sour cream. The fish is especially good with this sauce.

Smoked Herring With Creamed Eggs.—Cook six eggs until hard in the shell. Make a sauce of two tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt and two cupfuls of milk; season with pepper and salt after cooking the butter and flour and adding the milk. Chop the egg whites coarsely and add to the sauce; pour over buttered toast. Rice the egg yolks over this, and finish each slice of toast with a strip of herring, which has been heated and dotted with bits of butter.

Codfish Chowder.—Take one pound of salt codfish, one and one-half cupfuls of sliced potatoes, one teaspoonful of powdered thyme, a dash of pepper, two cupfuls of tomato juice, two cupfuls of milk, two and one-half cupfuls of water, a stalk of celery diced, one-fourth of a cupful of onion diced. Freshen the fish and cut in small pieces. Cook the vegetables, seasoning and water, add the fish and milk previously heated and serve with crisped crackers.

Codfish Souffle.—One cupful of shredded codfish, two tablespoonfuls of flour, two tablespoonfuls of butter, a few dashes of pepper, three eggs, one teaspoonful of minced parsley, two cupfuls of milk, one cupful of soft bread crumbs and a teaspoonful of onion juice. Make a white sauce as above, freshen the codfish by soaking, then rinse well and flake; add to the white sauce. Separate the yolks and whites of the eggs and beat each light, stir in the yolks, add seasonings, then fold in the whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish and cook thirty minutes. Surround the dish with hot water and serve from the souffle dish.

Sticks as Receipts. In one of the corridors of the British houses of parliament there is a curious exhibit which looks like a bundle of kindling wood. It represents all that is left of the account "books" used by the exchequer during the Middle Ages. The bundle consists of "tallies," notched sticks on which accounts were kept. When an account was paid a stick was split. One-half was kept and the other half was given as a receipt. When the crude system was abandoned, and proper books were kept, there was a vast accumulation of these tallies, and early in the last century an official had the happy thought of saving on fuel by using this vast hoard of tally-sticks as kindling wood. It was actually by the overheating of a stove by using too many of these tally-sticks that the old houses of parliament caught fire in 1834 and were burned down.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Theresa Fasshauer died in this city today. Notice of funeral later.

William A. Miers, son of Albert J. Miers, died last evening after a short illness. His father and one sister survive. The funeral will be held from the late home, No. 41 Hudson street, Tuesday afternoon. Interment will be in Montrose cemetery.

Emma, wife of George G. Cook, the well-known passenger conductor on the Walkill Valley Railroad, died at the Benedictine Hospital Saturday, June 3, after a long illness, aged 55 years. Although her ailment was of a painful nature she was a most patient sufferer. Mrs. Cook was born at Wallkill, a daughter of the late Erasmus and Mary Hatch, and besides her husband she is survived by three sons, Andrew J. Cook, of Van Etten & Cook, attorneys at law, Albert N. Cook, of Merritt & Cook, real estate agents, and Dr. William A. Cook, who is in business in New York; also two brothers, Duncan Hatch of this city; Moses Hatch of Bridgeport, Conn.; and one sister, Mrs. Lottie Barnhart of Brooklyn. She was a most loving and affectionate wife, mother and sister and her death is a sad one for her relatives, many friends and neighbors. The funeral will be held from her late residence, 22 Shufeldt street, Tuesday, June 6, at 9:30 o'clock and at 10 o'clock from St. Mary's Church, where a solemn Mass of requiem will be celebrated for the repose of her soul. The remains will be taken to Walden, for interment.

Yerry Cottage Sold.
Frank DuFon, the Wall street real estate dealer, has sold the new cottage of Joseph Yerry on Franklin street to Joseph T. Bongartz, Jr., druggist, 358 Broadway, who will take possession shortly.

DIED.
COOK—In this city, Saturday, June 3, 1922, Emma Cook, wife of George Cook.

Funeral will be held Tuesday, June 6, at her late residence, 22 Shufeldt street, at 9:30 a. m. and at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Church, where a solemn high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul. Interment at Walden, N. Y. Automobile cortege.

FASSHAUER—In this city, June 5, 1922, Theresa Fasshauer. Notice of funeral hereafter.

MIRS—At rest, Sunday evening, June 4, 1922, William A. Miers, 2½ years old son of Albert J. Miers. Relatives and friends are invited to attend the funeral from the late home, No. 41 Hudson street, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Interment in Montrose cemetery.

Society Notes

Quinlan-Langier.

Miss Madeline E. Langier of New York city and Cornwall-on-the-Hudson and Dr. F. B. Quinlan of this city were united in marriage Saturday at St. Thomas's Church, Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, by the Rev. Father Bronson. Miss Anna Langier, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and John J. Boye of this city best man. Following the ceremony the bridal party motored to the Palatine Hotel, Newburgh, where the wedding dinner was served. Guests gathered at the home of the bride's mother in the evening, where a reception was tendered the newlyweds. The home was very prettily decorated with ferns, roses and lilies of the valleys. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts including checks. Dr. Quinlan is a well known physician of this city. The bride is very popular in her set both in New York city and Cornwall. Dr. and Mrs. Quinlan are spending their honeymoon in Atlantic City.

Healey-Fleming.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's Church Sunday afternoon by the Very Rev. Dean John J. Hickey, when Miss Alma T. Fleming became the bride of Daniel B. Healey. Miss Fleming, who was charmingly gowned in blue georgette crepe with hat, to match, is the daughter of Charles J. Fleming, formerly of this city, and the granddaughter of Mrs. John Wolf of 56 West Pierpont street, with whom she resided. The groom is the son of Mrs. Bernard Healey, and is a popular marine engineer with the Cornell Steamboat Co. Miss Anna Rafferty of Newark, N. J., attended the bride and was dressed very charmingly in a pretty gown of black tulle with orange trimmings. John Fleming, brother of the bride, acted as best man. After a reception held at the home of Mrs. John Wolf, the happy couple left on their honeymoon trip to New York city, Washington and other places of interest. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts including silver, cut glass, linen and substantial checks. Upon their return they will reside at 84 Abeel street where a newly furnished home awaits them. They have the best wishes of their many friends.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 5.—Stocks showed a strong tone at the opening of the exchange today. Dupont powder made an overnight advance of 9½, opening at 147½, ex-dividend of 2 points. Standard Oil of New Jersey rose ½ to 194 and Transcontinental Oil was ½ higher at 194. Steel common started ¼ higher at 102½, while Baldwin Locomotive was ¼ lower at 115½. The rails were practically unchanged.

The list was irregular throughout the forenoon, many stocks being in supply. The declines were not extensive, however, and good buying came into the market at the lower levels. Republic Iron & Steel dropped 1½ to 74½ and Midvale yielded 1½ to 37. Phillips Petroleum dropped 1 point to 54. Dupont Powder, after falling from 147½, to 141, rallied to 144. United Retail Stores falling 2½ to 63½. Steel common reacted to 101½ and then recovered to 102½. The market turned strong after the early irregularity when many issues reacted from 1 to 2 points.

The market closed strong; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds strong.

Advices Buttermilk for Crows Feet, Wrinkles and Enlarged Pores

Says Old Time Recipe of Buttermilk Cream Best—A Gentle Massage with Fingers Before Retiring All That is Necessary.

The old-time application of buttermilk and cream to the skin and remove harsh little wrinkles and ugly enlargements is grandmother's recipe and women have known it for generations. The country is again using it to ensure a beautiful complexion and snow-white hands and arms.

Buttermilk, however, is not always obtainable, but a specialist has at last perfected a method of concentrating buttermilk and combining it with a perfect cream, which you can buy in small quantities ready to use at any first-class drug store, by simply asking for Howard's Buttermilk Cream.

There is no secret about it nor is there any doubt about the result—it is just common, ordinary buttermilk in the form of a wonderful cream. If you cannot obtain it, send 10 cents (either in stamps) for generous trial package of both Cream and Soap, Howard Bros. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement.

HAREM REVIVED, RESULT OF WAR

Strife Furnishes Girls for Slave Market in Turkey.

ARE SMUGGLED INTO TURKEY

Pretty Captives of Turkish Soldiers Often Sold for $1.50 or $2 When Put Up for Sale in Places Where Auctions Take Place—If Turks Had Faithfully Carried Out Armistice Agreement Many Girls Would Have Been Saved From Harem Life.

War has resulted in the revival of harems in Turkey. Armed strife is furnishing girls, too terrified to protest against harem life, who can be bought from the soldiers, who hold them captive, for as low as $1.50 and $2 each. The man who couldn't afford to buy a harem ten years ago can afford what he pleases now.

Asia Minor has become known as the Twentieth Century slave market. The battlefields are the auction block to which women are brought for bartering among the victorious soldiery. The country's devastated towns along the shores of the Black Sea and down into the provinces of Angora are being used by slave dealers to carry on their trade.

Harems Filled to Overflowing. The population of the harems has been swelled in the last few years through the demoralization of the Armenian girls as a result of the looting of the villages by the Turkish soldiery. Girls who would never have gone into the harems had the family been held intact, have drifted into them from the ruined districts around the Black Sea, from Samzun, Batum, and Trabzon. Their lives were ruined, their resistance broken.

Turks living in lower Anatolia have filled their harems to overflowing with these young women, whom they were able to buy from the soldiery for a handful of coins. Thus the war has enabled the country Turk to start the habit of harem life all over again, just at a time when decreasing affluence and public opinion were mitigating it.

Most of the women in the harems are young. A large part of them are smuggled into the country for deliberate selling. The Turkish girls who marry into the harems do so usually with their parents' consent, although knowing that they will share their husbands with other wives. Other harem inmates for the most part are not consulted.

On the signing of the armistice all prisoners of war were supposed to be handed over to the Allied governments. Had this agreement been carried out faithfully many girls would have been saved from harem life. The Turks, however, have found ways to conceal their trafficking in girls. The famous bride school at Samzun is a significant example of their cleverness at concealment.

Girls' School Mere Blind. This "school" was housed in an old gray convent, on the edge of the town of Samzun, on the Black Sea. It had been a home for beautiful nuns in the past, for the women of Samzun are all very beautiful. After the Turks took possession of the town the convent was used for those lovely Georgian and Armenian girls whom the officers fancied were worth more than the average captives.

The girls were gathered at the old convent where the officers guarding them said they were to be put in school. The girls believed this until they noticed they were being brought down in groups from their sleeping quarters, where they were kept guarded all day, to stand before officers and merchants, rich farmers and wealthy Pashas. Then one, perhaps two, of the girls would be taken from the convent the next morning.

Sometimes a girl's entry into the harem is accompanied by the old-fashioned details of a Turkish wedding but, for the most part, she is taken to her new home like a new domestic animal bought at market. For she is, like them, meant for work.

WOLVES PROVE MENACE

These Animals Are a Plague to Mail Plane Pilots.

Pilot P. P. Scott of the air mail service, who landed in the hills 20 miles from Elko, Nev., recently when the engine of his plane threw a connecting rod and he was forced to walk for 11 hours through a snowstorm before reaching Elko, is now carrying a 45-caliber pistol when making flights. A pack of wolves which followed 500 yards behind the pilot as he tramped from the desolate mountain country in which he landed to the Nevada city caused him considerable uneasiness, and he says that he will not take any more chances, in the event of another forced landing.

Despite the severe test to which the pilot was put in the accident, he did not lose one day in mail flying. While his hike through the snowstorm was long and tiresome, he was back on the job Friday and made his regular trip into Salt Lake. He made the regular mail flight from Salt Lake to Elko.

BLIND MAN FOLLOWED WIRES ABOUT HIS FARM

Learned to Read by the Braille System and Used Bible Often.

E. M. Bowden, who died at his home near Rockdale, Tex., recently, was widely known as a successful farmer, although he had been totally blind for the last 60 years of his life. He kept in close touch with the work upon his farm, doing much of it himself. He was a bachelor and devoted his leisure time to discussing public questions with his neighbors.

In order that he might go from place to place upon his farm Bowden devised and had constructed an overhead trolley system. By following the wires which were strung upon short poles he was able to get around without assistance. One day a neighbor who called on him found him building a rail fence.

At the time of his death Bowden was seventy years old. After losing his sight he learned to read by the Braille system, and was often seen reading the Bible by the sense of touch. He maintained an interest in the outside world and was a subscriber to several papers, which kind neighbors would read to him.

MOSCOW NOW "WIDE OPEN"

Staid City of Czars and Repressed Capital of Early Sovietism Gone.

Moscow has become a wide-open town for the first time in its modern history. It is open for business, for thefts, for holdups, for fun, for disease and disaster, for speculation, for drinking, for any and all things man or woman may devise.

The old-timers of the staid prewar regime cannot recognize anything but the snow. It used to be, before the war, a sort of country, family town as compared to the gayer St. Petersburg.

During the revolutions it lost this friendly aspect of quiet and, as the soviet settled down here, it became strictly moral and severe, with only the grand opera to lighten the load of propaganda and thousands of orders on how to live and prosper and be happy, notwithstanding closed shops, lack of bread and medicine and clothes.

A Russian Rip Van Winkle who had slept during the last three years wouldn't know the town these nights. Church bells ring out for prayers. Communists and bourgeois, peasants and princesses are all scrambling for more money that they may not fall into the abyss of famine. Cabmen are fighting for higher rates, grain dealers for more rubles a bushel, bakers for more a pound, candy and cookery shops are blooming out in every corner, wine and vodka are sold in millinery shops and the eighty policemen of the town have long since quit bothering with footpads. The lid is off.

PLENTY OF WHITE OWLS

Judge Reports That Woods of York County, Me., Are Full of Them. Judge George L. Emery of the Biddeford (Me.) municipal court, who is a hunter of no small skill and a nature student of years' experience, reports that the woods in York county are full of white owls this season.

One specimen which he showed was gigantic in size. On taking the bird to a taxidermist he found six others ready for mounting, all from western Maine. Judge Emery says there are more white owls in Maine this year than since he was a boy.

TEXAN'S INCOME IS $66 A MINUTE

Colonel Humphreys Gives John D. Run for His Money.

SUCCESS COMES IN A YEAR

The Colonel, Who is Now the Largest Oil Producer in the Mexico Field, Has Accomplished or Developed His Enormous Income Within the Short Space of Twelve Months—Is Producing at the Rate of 22,000,000 Barrels of Crude Oil Yearly.

Col. A. E. Humphreys of Mexico, Tex., promises to give John D. Rockefeller a "run for his money." The colonel, a year ago needing money to develop his first well, now is getting an income of $36,000,000 yearly and isn't reached his limit.

The Humphreys interests in the Mexico wells today are producing nearly four times the crude oil daily that is being produced by the entire state of Pennsylvania.

The United States geological survey gave Pennsylvania's production for the month as 580,000 barrels, or a total of 7,000,000 barrels for 1921. According to Colonel Humphreys, the oil actually run to storage and the tank car shipments from his company for the 24 hours ending at seven o'clock one morning recently amounted to 60,700 barrels, a rate of more than 22,000,000 barrels yearly.

This month the Humphreys companies will produce in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 barrels of crude. The potential production today is greatly in excess of the amount of oil actually moved.

Income $100,000 a Day. "Within sixty days the company's production," said Colonel Humphreys, "will be 100,000 barrels daily, and within four months it should be above 150,000 barrels. The oil actually moved from our wells for every day of the new year has been more than 50,000 barrels, with several inside producing wells 'planned in.'"

The income for the Humphreys interests today is at a rate of approximately $100,000 every 24 hours, more than $3,000,000 every 30 days, or more than $36,000,000 yearly.

To realize more fully just what tremendous income this is, just imagine that for each hour of the night and day you were receiving $4,000, which is more than $60 every minute. One scarcely could blame the colonel for taking a few weeks off for a trip to Cuba, the Panama canal and a fishing trip on the coast of Florida.

being defined by the bit of the drill, he owns more than 80 per cent of the producing area of the Mexico field.

Price and Production.

From the business side of the producing end of the oil industry the important thing is that of knowing in advance just what you may expect in the way of price for the crude produced. This Colonel Humphreys has fixed to the extent of 33,000,000 barrels, which he sold to the Standard and Sinclair interests at a fixed price of $1.50 a barrel. That will amount to almost $50,000,000 at the present rate of production.

In addition to that 33,000,000 barrels, the colonel has contracted to deliver to the Pure Oil company a maximum of 20,000 barrels daily, which gives an additional outlet for more than 7,000,000 barrels of crude this year. And it's all at a price not less than $1.50 a barrel.

Preparations are under way to care for this oil. The Enbridge Oil & Gas company, the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing agency and the Humphreys Pure Oil Pipe Line company have under construction tankage to store more than 15,000,000 barrels of crude. The Pure Oil company is shipping by tank car to the Gulf coast an average daily of 15,000 barrels. There it is loaded in tankers, shipped to Marcus Hook, Pa., and put in storage.

TEXAS HOOD BAD STUFF

Lye, Cockroaches and Rodents Enter Into Composition of Moonshine.

Lye, fusel oil and wood alcohol are not the only poisonous substances in bootleg whisky, according to Deputy Sheriff Frank Hampe. Hampe, Harris county deputy, who claims the Texas still-capturing championship, is considered the local bootleg authority. "Not only do fusel oil and lye exist in poison moonshine whisky, but frequently cockroaches, mice and wood insects go into the deadly concoction," Hampe said. "Barrels used for fermenting mash are left uncovered," according to Hampe. "This allows the rodents and insects to fall in and die. Moonshiners make no efforts to take the dead animals and bugs out." A dead pig was found in a barrel of mash destroyed on one of his raids, Hampe asserted.

Issue "My Train Was Late" Vouchers. "My train was late" vouchers have been issued by a Paris (France) railroad company to commuters. They are to be presented employers when the commuter arrives at his work late.

A Lake on Shipboard.

When one contemplates that so much energy is exerted to the end of keeping the water out of a ship, it looms up as an astonishing fact that there is of necessity a great deal of water within the hull of the vessel. A modern liner has enough water in her hull to make a good-sized lake. About 1,740 tons of water is carried by a big passenger vessel. The drinking water for the use of passengers amounts to 550, and there are about 330 tons of sea water being used for ballast. The six boilers contain 360 tons. The tanks are situated between the double hulls of the vessel.

Harold F. Henwood, former Denver (Colo.) social favorite, has been pardoned from the Canon City (Colo.) Penitentiary, where he was serving a life sentence for killing Sylvester (Tony) von Phul, St. Louis sportsman and international balloonist, and George E. Copeland, wealthy Cripple Creek mining man, and maiming for life James W. Atkinson, of Colorado Springs. Copeland and Atkinson were "innocent bystanders." The shooting occurred in 1911 in the palatial Brown Palace Barroom, in Denver, when Henwood and von Phul quarreled over the beautiful Mrs. Isabel Patterson Springer, once noted St. Louis beauty and then wife of a leading Denver capitalist. Springer divorced Mrs. Springer, who died later, a pauper, on Blackwell's Island, New York. Springer pleaded for Henwood's pardon, expressing the belief he was defending Mrs. Springer's name.

William Rosendorf, son of William Rosendorf, Sr., wealthy Washington (D.C.) resident, had been a mute for years, but regained slightly his power of speech while making an airplane flight over Atlantic City, N. J., with Pilot Allen. At a height of 5,000 feet he was heard to say "airplane." He can hear perfectly, but lost his power of speech through illness.

COLONIALS WIN QUIET CONTEST

From New Jersey Team—Artie Rice Gets Two of Locals' Six Hits—Culliton and McAuliffe Allow One and Two Hits Respectively.

Captain Harry Schrick's Colonials sent the Bayonne Field Club back to the New Jersey home Sunday night with a 4 to 2 defeat as their portion of the game played at the Fair Grounds the same afternoon. The Jerseyites found themselves unable to solve the offerings of Bud Culliton and Bill McAuliffe, who divided the pitching for the Kingston team, and found the opportunities to push runners across the plate few and far between.

Although the score was fairly close, the contest had few thrills for the Sunday crowd of fans. The light hitting of both teams made the game a tame affair, although Kingston had runners on the paths in practically every inning. Wilson, a right hander who at times seemed to throw the ball from his shoe-tops, allowed the Colonials but six hits, but his support failed him at different stages.

An injury to Leo Fitzgerald, who was forced to stay out of the game with an injured ankle, made Captain Schrick change his line-up for the game. Schwab was moved over to center, Rice went to left, and "Brick" Cragan covered right.

Unlike the recent games of the Kingston team, it was not until the second inning that the locals started scoring. Rice led off with a single to right. Schwab waited Wilson out and went to first on four balls. Glaser laid down a neat bunt on the first base line, going out. Wilson to Frazier, both runners moving up on the play. Moore hit to Formanek on third, who threw to the plate to head off Rice, but Artie went back to the bag and made it in safety. Culliton's high fly was dropped by Arnon, but the right fielder picked up the ball in time to force Moore at second. Coyle sent a two bagger to left and Rice crossed the plate with Schwab following him. Cragan went out on a grounder to Voss.

The Kingston club picked up another score in the third. After Robins went out on a foul to Miller, Deegan sent a single to short. Arnon, who was having a bad day in right, dropped Rice's fly and Deegan went to third. On Schwab's grounder to Frazier Deegan scored.

The Jerseyites made their only hit and run off Culliton in the fourth. Frazier led off with a triple over Rice's head and scored a minute later when Voss hit down the first base line, Coyle holding the ball but being unable to get his man.

McAuliffe started in the box for Kingston in the sixth, but had difficulty in returning the side after the first two men had gone out on easy chances. With two down Caine hit one to center for two bases. Artz, who had relieved Arnon in the fourth, waited and got a base on balls. McAuliffe then unworked a wild pitch and Caine came all the way in.

way in. Hartigan sent one to center for a single, Artz making third. Mac then settled down and fanned Alchele for the final out.
The Colonials made their last tally in the eighth. Jack Robins couldn't get out of the way of one of Wilson's underhand shoots and stopped the ball with his back, then ambled down to first. Jack tried out Miller's whip and beat the throw to second and took third after Deegan fled out to enter. Rice then drove Robins home with a single to right.
The men from New Jersey were unable to do anything with McAuliffe in the ninth and went out in one, two, three order.

Scott Original "Great Unknown."
The expression, "The Great Unknown," is applied in a hundred different ways—in politics, in financial operations, in criminal investigations, in fact, every time there is doubt about the identity of something or somebody. The original "Great Unknown" was Sir Walter Scott. He had published his "Waverley Novels" anonymously. All literary England was wondering about the author, but Scott and his friends kept the secret because he was a clerk of sessions, and his superiors considered novel writing beneath the dignity of such a high official. "Serious" works he wrote under his own name, but for years all the fame and success due the author of the immortal Waverley books went to the "Great Unknown." The veil was only lifted after everybody had guessed the truth.

PUBLIC MARKET IN FULL BLAST THURSDAY.

On Thursday, June 8, the market growers are planning to start in again on the public market on Cornell street and a considerable number of the growers have agreed to all bring their produce to the market on that date. On that day there will be a considerable variety of vegetables and also a number of fruit growers will be on the market from Ulster Park with their unusual high quality of strawberries. The meeting of the growers last Thursday clearly indicated a strong feeling in favor of the wholesale market in Kingston.

British House of Lords.
John Wilson Croker, in a letter written shortly before his death in 1857, mentions that going over to the lords from the commons one evening he noticed, as a fact, "not unimportant to constitutional history," that every one of the 30 peers then present had sat with him in the house of commons. "It shows," he says, "how completely the house of commons has been the nursery of the house of lords." There are usually in the house of lords about 200 peers who have sat in the house of commons.

Few Good Cooks Under Thirty.
Ide, who cooked at Crockford's club in London during the Regency, and who had been chief to Louis XIV. to Lord Sefton, and to the duke of Devonshire, declared that while music, dancing, fencing, painting and mechanics had professors under twenty years of age, excellence in cookery was never obtained under thirty. He left Lord Sefton flat because a guest put more pepper in his soup. There was a cook! But he was not English. Of England was it said that God sends meat, the devil sends cooks.
